

San Diego Prevention Research Center Familias Sanas Y Activas

Want to get involved in promoting physical activity & nutrition among Latinos?

Fieldwork, Internship & Volunteer Opportunities

The San Diego Prevention Research Center's primary research focus is to evaluate community-based efforts to promote physical activity.

OPPORTUNITIES

- Get involved with community organizations to promote physical activity.
- Plan workshops and conferences.
- Engage in social marketing & health communication efforts.
- Gain experience in program and intervention development or implementation, data entry and analysis.

BENEFITS

- Build professional contacts and networks.
- Opportunity to receive professional or graduate school recommendation.
- SDSU course credit PH 650/750, PSY 499.
- Data for thesis.

Requirements

Minimum of 6 hours/week per semester

Personal transportation (organizations are located in San Diego, Chula Vista or San Ysidro)

Bilingual: English-Spanish preferred

Contact Lindsay Dillon, Education & Training Coordinator:
858-457-7281, ext. 244

ldillon@ucsd.edu

Be part of a team of researchers, interns, and community members!